What is a PATENT?

A patent for an invention is the grant of a property right to the inventor, issued by the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Did you know there are patents for: an eye protector for chickens, a sealed crustless sandwich, a self-waiting table, an artificial heart, and an anti-snoring device. Check out the patent submitted by Walt Disney for Mickey Mouse (1930) and the patent submitted by Julie Newmar (Original Catwoman) for Pantyhose with Shaping Brand for Cheeky Derriere Relief (1977).

The UCF Library is a Patent & Trademark Depository Library!

Sue Docs? No, it is not a lawyer who likes to file malpractice claims. It is a type of call number that can be found here in the UCF Library and is specific to government documents. So if you see a call number in the catalog with lots of slashes and colons like Y 4.F 76/2:S.HRG.106-870 — you know it is a Government Document and located on the Main Floor.

"Preserving the Past to Present to the Future"

This workshop will focus on the specifics of acquiring and preserving archives and other "special" collections, as well as curating displays.
